Air pollution crisis

Air pollution has emerged as one of the most significant health hazards facing India today. With its detrimental effects reaching every corner of the country, it is not just the smog that stifles the air, but the dangerous toxins that are silently poisoning our population. In 2021, air pollution was responsible for every $1 million deaths eldedly.

over 8.1 million deaths globally, with India bearing a large portion of that burden. It has now become the second leading risk factor for premature death worldwide, killing more people than any infectious disease. What is even more alarming is the rise in cases of chronic respiratory and cardiovascular diseases neurological disorders, and even cancer, directly linked to the toxins we breathe.

In estient killer

Air pollution in India is a lethal cocktail of both human-made and natural pollutants. On one hand, we have industrial emissions, vehicle exhaust, and the burning of fossil fuels for power generation, particularly from cool-fixed power plants. On the other, natural sources like wildfires—frequently enused by human negligence—volcanie eruptions, and decomposing organic matter which release harmful gases like methane into the atmosphere.

by human negligence—volcame eruptions, and decomposing organic matter which release harmful gases like methane into the atmosphere. While pollutants in the air have long been recognized as a primary contributor to a host of diseases, recent studies have underscored an undemiable connection between air pollution and a shary rise in health issues. According to Marina Belen Romanello, Executive Director of Lancet Countdown on Health and Climate Change, air pollution is more than just an environmental problem—it is a public health crisist Romanello's recent comments at the World Health Organization (WHO) conference in Coloubian highlighted the disease resolution statument issues at each belief in the conference of the contribution of the co

In fact, India's struggle with air pollution has resolved such alarming proportions that it is now one of the leading contributors to increased hospitalizations for respiratory diseases, particularly during peak

Despite mounting scientific evidence, India's government has been slow to neknowledge the gravity of the air pollution problem. In a recent statement by Anupaya Patel, India's Minister of State for Health, the government maintained that there is no conclusive data to link air pollution directly to deaths or

In an address to the Rajys Subto, Patel argued that various factors—including diet, socio-economic status, and genetic predisposition—contribute to respiratory aliments. While these factors are indeed relevant, they do little to address the undeniable fact that air pollution remains a significant and preventable cause of health deterioration.

Romanello, however, insists that there is "no safe level of air pollution." Whether in rural or urban

Romanello, however, insists that there is "no safe level of air pollution." Whether in rural or urban India, the science is clear: any exposure to polluted air—regardless of its concentration—causes harm to our lungs, candiovascular system, and internal organs. And yet, despite WHO's clear recommendations on safe pollution thresholds, many of India's cities exceed these levels by a staggering margin.

Economic and social toll

The health consequences of air pollution go beyond hospital bills and premature deaths—they have a devastating impact on India's economy. According to Romanello, the damage to productivity is severe, with millions of people missing work due to illness, and productivity dropping in sectors reliant on physical labor. The cost of treating pollution-related diseases, both in terms of healthcare and lost productivity, places a huge strain on the Indian economy.

The government has launched initiatives like the Pradham Maatri Ujiwala Yajana (PMUY) to promote clean cooking technologies, and the hope is that cleaner fuels will reduce indoor air pollution, particularly for women and chaltera. However, according to a report poblished by a think tank in 2024, around 41 pericant of India's population still relies on word, evon dung, and other forms of biomass for cooking! These practices emit an estimated 340 million tonnes of carbon dioxide annually, contributing 13 percent of the country's greenhouse gas emissions. If these issues are not addressed, India will centime to bear

These practices emit an estimated 340 million tonnes of carbon dioxide annually, contributing 13 percent of the country's greenhouse gas emissions. If these issues are not addressed, India will continue to bear heavy health and environmental cost of these outdated practices.

Globally, air pollution is now recognized as a public health emergency. Over 47 million health workers, advocates, and potients have signed petitions urging governments to take urgent action to tackle this crisis. At the WHO's second conference on air pollution and health, held in Cartagena at the end of March 2025, over 50 countries and organizations made new pledges to address the deadty effects of pollution. Their collective aim is to halve the number of deaths related to air pollution by 2040. According to WHO Director Dr. Marin Neira, air pollution is a leading cause of death worldwide, and it disproportioantely harms low—and middle income countries, where nearly 90 percent of the deaths from pollution occur.

WHO's recent reports make it clear that air pollution affects every put of the body, from the brain to the lungs, heart, kidneys, and even the skin. The long-term health risks are staggering, and time for action is now. Governments must step up, cancel stricter policies, and invest in eleaner, greener technologies.

Governments must step up, enact stricter policies, and invest in cleaner, greener technologies.

Political toxicity

It is just not the physical pollution alone that is taking a toll on the common man's health. The rising tide of pollicial toxicity in India is another silent stressor affecting millions. As citizens by to navigate the storm of contraductory pollicial messages, divisive thetoric, and constant noise from public forums, the mental toll is immense. Auxiety, confusion, and stress are now epidemic, as people by to make sense of the chaos surrounding them. This "political pollution" may not show up on any air quality index, but it is a burden on the mind, health, and spirit of the people.

As air pollution continues to ravage India's health and economy, the need for urgent action has neither been clearer. The government must take heed of the scientific evidence, acknowledging the undeable link between air pollution and its deventualing health impacts. Every day that passes without substantial change is another day the health of millions of Indians is compromised. It is time to clear the air—for the sake of the population, the economy, and future generations.

The message is simple but critical: clean air is not a luxury, it is our basic right.

Highlights from Lex Fridman Podcast - Part 4

Himalayan journey and Modi's quest for purpose

Lex Fridman is an American computer scientist and podcaster. Since 2018, he has hosted the Lex Fridman Podcast, where he interviews notable figures from various fields such as science, technology, sports, and politics. This is a transcript of Lex Fridman Podcast with Narendra Modi. Followings is the conversation during a interview with Indian prime minister Narendra Modi and following is the fourth part of that interview's transcript.

Lex Fridman: At 17, you left home and spent two years roaming in the Himalayas, searching for purpose, for deeper truth, for God. You lived a nomadie, minimalist existence, very much like a yogi, often sleeping without a roof over your head. What are some memorable spiritual moments, rituals, experiences from that time?

Prime Minister Narendra Modi: Look, I don't

usually talk much about this, but I can share a few external aspects. I grew up in a small town, surrounded by community. I found inspiration in books, particularly those about Swami Vivekanan-da and Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj, and I experimented with my own limits.

From a young age, I tested my physical endurance. I'd sleep outside in the cold to see how my body reacted. Reading Vivekananda deepened my spiritual inclination. I recall his encounter with Sri Ramakrishna Paramahamsa, where he couldn't bring himself to ask for material needs before Goddess Kali. This ignited a spirit of giv-ing within him, a realisation of the unity between Shiva and all living beings.

An incident with a meditating saint during Navratri also left an impression. I chose to serve him instead of attending a family wedding, drawn to his spiritual practices. The desire to do some-thing meaningful was always within me.

Doring my mission, I met remarkable saints, neluding Swami Atmasthanandji, who lived a life of wisdom and service. He emphasized serv-ing society, not personal well-being. His words, though initially disheartening, guided me.

I then wandered, spending time in the Himala-yas, embracing solitude and meeting ascetics. The mountains, ice, and towering peaks shaped me, strengthening my inner power. I practiced medita-tion, woke in pre-dawn hours, bathed in the cold, and served elderly saints. I devoted myself to helping villagers during a natural calamity I moved constantly, living a nomadic life, seek-ing to understand life's meaning. These experiences profoundly influenced my journey.

"My nomadic search for life's meaning profoundly shaped me. Whether as a child caring for others, a wanderer in the Himalayas, or now in this role, it's all driven by the same inner purpose: selfless service. To me, there's no difference between a sain and a leader."

(vi) Relevant Date with reference to which the price has been arrived at

In terms of the provisions of Chapter V of SEBI ICDR Regulations, relevant date for determining the floor price for the Preferential Issue of the Equity Shares is March 28, 2025, which is the preceding working day to the date 30 days prior to the date of this Meeting ("Relevant Date").

(vii) Basis on which the price has been arrived at and justification for the price along with the report of the Registered Valuer

The Equity Shares of the Company are listed on BSE Limited ("BSE") (referred to as the "Stock Exchange"). The Equity Shares are frequently traded in terms of the SEBI ICDR Regulations.

In accordance with regulation 166A(1) of the SEBI ICDR Regulations, the Company is not required to obtain a valuation report from an independent registered valuer since the proposed Preferential Issue is not expected to result in a change in control or allotment of more than 5% (five per cent) of the post issue fully diluted share capital of the Company. Additionally, the Company being a listed company is also exempted by rule 13(1) of the Companies (Share Capital and Debentures) Rules, 2014 from undertaking valuation of its shares. However, the Company has appointed Mr. Subbarao Kesavarapu, Independent Registered Valuer having IBBI Registration No. IBBI/RV/02/2019/12292 for determining the floor price.

In terms of the SEBI ICDR Regulations, the floor price determined by the valuer, at which the Equity Shares can be issued is Rs. 201.92 (Rupees Two Hundred and One and Paise Ninety-Two only) per Equity Share, as per the pricing formula prescribed under the SEBI ICDR Regulations for the Preferential Issue and is the highest of the following:

(a) 90 (ninety) trading days volume weighted average price (VWAP) of the Equity Shares of the Company preceding the Relevant Date: i.e., Rs. 189.64/- (Rupees One Hundred and Eighty-Nine and Paise Sixty-Four only) per Equity share;

- (b) 10 (ten) trading days volume weighted average price (VWAP) of the Equity Shares of the Company preceding the Relevant Date: i.e., Rs. 201.92/- (Rupees Two Hundred and One and Paise Ninety-Two only) per Equity share;
- (c) Floor price determined in accordance with the provisions of the Articles of Association of the Company. However, the Articles of Association of the Company does not provide for any method of determination for valuation of shares which results in floor price higher than determined price pursuant to SEBI ICDR Regulations.

Further, given that the Equity Shares of the Company have been listed for a period of more than 90 (ninety) trading days prior to the relevant date, the Company is not required to re-compute the issue price as per Regulation 164(3) of the SEBI ICDR Regulations, and therefore, the Company is not required to submit the undertakings specified under Regulations 163(1)(g) and 163(1)(h) of the SEBI ICDR Regulations.
